Profile

Philosopher and English teacher with a PhD and 15 years of university teaching experience. I help students read closely, think clearly and write well; I design the study guides, readers and web tools that support that work; and I help schools and teams work out what good, human education looks like in the age of AI.

Services

Tutoring and TEFL

- High school English (Grades 10 to 12, Home Language and First Additional Language), including literature, poetry and essay writing
- University philosophy and academic writing at any level: structure, argument and referencing
- Online English lessons for non-native speakers, backed by a 120-hour TESOL/TEFL certificate

Editing and writing support

- Editing and proofreading of essays, theses and academic writing
- Structural feedback on arguments and drafts, drawing on years of marking and commenting on undergraduate and honours essays
- Writing and editing study guides, readers and course materials

Learning design and tools

- Course and module design, from outcomes and reading lists to assessments
- Rubrics, marking tools and practice apps built as simple, standalone web apps
- Online lecture production: live-streamed, recorded lectures with good audio and video

Philosophical and AI consulting

- What to do about AI in a classroom, a course or a company: talks, workshops and a written brief you can act on
- One-to-one philosophical counselling for a question in your own life
